		flames on 26th Nov. 1903. An enterprising photographer, J H Wilson of Market Street, Leicester, took this picture & it was processed & postmarked on 3rd Decemb 1903 all within 7 days! The sender's message reads: "We have had a fire in Wigston, it was a dreadful affair & occurred in the night. We saw something of it, there are about 200 thrown out of work in consequence. The pile is still smouldering, 2 large wedding cakes that were due out next day were destroyed. Fats, jams, sugars, butters, margarines, decorations, flour etc., were burned by the ton." Happily the factory was rebuilt & continues, these days it is a branch of United Biscuit

		In bits a substant a better the free better and a contract be distributed by $A = A + A + A + A + A + A + A + A + A + $ its history relates to being dug for the earth required to build the railway between the Spion Kop at Blaby Road, and Kilby Bridge. The remaining 'diggings' flooded and the pit created, but little knowledge existed of where the earth had gone and why. I recall as time went by, there was even talk of the NRA cutting a channel Wigston. In my childhood I remember that there was a phone box on the corner with a Policeman on point duty. He knew everyone in South Wigston and if as a child you were naughty you got a clip around the ear! I remember getting a telling off for riding my bike on the pavement near South Wigston High School at the age of 11! Deeming's as a child in the 60's was full of interesting stationery items and toys my brother and I clubbed together our pocket money and bought a potato

They also bought in axles and braking systems, but the chassis, motor, and controller were made in-house. One early failure was the Trilec, a 3-wheeled vehicle with two steerable wheels at the front and a fixed motorised wheel at the back. It suffered from a lack of weather protection for the operator, who sat over the rear wheel, and this also restricted forward visibility. However, more conventional vehicles sold well, and were available in six chassis types by the mid-1930s, suitable for payloads of 5/8 cwt, 10/12 cwt, 18/22 cwt, 25/30 cwt, 40 cwt and 60 cwt. They also bought in axles and braking systems, but the chassis, motor, and controller were made in-house. One early failure was the Trilec, a 3-wheeled vehicle with two steerable wheels at the front and a fixed motorised wheel at the back. It suffered from a lack of weather protection for the operator, who sat over the rear wheel, and this also restricted forward visibility. However, more conventional vehicles sold well, and were available in six chassis types by the mid-1930s, suitable for payloads of 5/8 cwt, 10/12 cwt, 18/22 cwt, 25/30 cwt, 40 cwt and 60 cwt. They could be fitted with an open-deck body for delivery, a closed van body, or a flat deck lorry body, while more specialist designs were produced for the collection of refuse. 		South Wigston and Wigston Magna became a Marshalling Yard. A site was constructed to form a pattern of lights to resemble poorly blacked out buildings trenches were fitted with lights and petrol burners which were electrically lighted. Timing of ignition was crucial and would take place after the first incendiary bombs had been dropped on the target. It was hoped that these could be quickly extinguished and the following aircraft would bomb on the decoys. This site was chosen as it was on the flight path of incoming bombers. The only incident my parents told me about was either an aircraft or bomb being dropped on a Black and White gable when his mother died and he lived with them at 20 Moat Street till he joined the RAF at 18. Connie and Edith's father went to work on the railroad in South Ame	erica leaving his wife and children in England. There was another son named Tom. Their father died there leaving the family impoverished and I'm not sure if the	at was when they moved to Moat Street. It was the end cottage next door to the shop. Connie was diagnosed with an enlarged heart at the age of 14 and was pr	rescribed bed rest. She never left her bed again and was an invalid the rest of her life. I believe they were related by Joan Mawby were regular visitors. Edie fostered dozens of children, often the ones from difficult back grounds and I take on the role of full time carer to Connie. I think the fostering probably began to bring some money in as they lived in real poverty. They were very well known b	y many in Wigston Magna and had many visitors who spent time with Connie in the front bedroom at Moat Street. I can remember as a child sitting in front of the	open fire toasting bread on a long toasting fork. Connie loved kids and we would sit on her bed being amused by her for ages. She ruled the roost from her bed wit	h a long stick which she was very adept at grabbing things with. They had a basket on a pulley out of the bedroom window d pieces in when they sent a note and the coins down! My dad was taught to play the organ by Violet? Who lived nearby but I believe it was just a respect thing not because she was an actual relative. Dad was an active member as a boy at All ndemned the council moved Connie and Edie to a house in Manor Street. The move was difficult as Connie was terrified of leaving and had to be sedated, she had ne	ver been in a car so going in the ambulance was quite traumatic for her. Also there was years and years of hoarding to be cleaned out, Connie was a magpie who thr	rew nothing away. Once again at Manor Street the upstairs bedroom became the main living space as this is where Connie was in bed. Unfortunately it looked into the	e back garden and she really missed seeing the people and life she used to see in her mirror reflecting the coming and going on Moat St. After she died Edie at la	st had a massive clear out and started living downstairs, Connie had never allowed any change so now Edie redecorated had ceased fostering years before but still had one remaining boy with her. Roger. He had been with Connie and Edie
